Dr. Poussaint is one of the finest and greatest psychiatrists in America. He was born in East Harlem (NY) in a family of eight children. His ancestors were from Guadeloupe and New York City. His parents were Harriet Johston Poussaint, a homemaker, and Christopher Poussaint, who worked as a printer and typographer. Dr Poussaint is a renowned authority, an eminent dedicated psychiatrist and teacher, part of the American intelligentsia.

He is also a prolific author. In addition to co-authoring Come On People, Dr. Poussaint is co-author of Raising Black Children and Lay My Burden Down: Unraveling the Mental Health Crisis Among African Americans. He closely collaborated with Dr. Bill Cosby EdD on several of his best-selling books. Dr. Poussaint's books should be translated into other languages (French, Spanish, Creole, etc).

He is a man of courage, philanthropy and a veteran of the civil rights movement. From 1965 to 1967, he was Southern Field Director of the Medical Committee for Human Rights in Jackson, Mississippi, selflessly providing medical care to civil rights workers and aiding in the desegregation of health facilities throughout the South. He is the former chair of the board of directors of PUSH for Excellence. He also served as one of Rev. Jesse Jackson's advisers in the 1984 presidential campaign.

Dr. Poussaint has authored widely cited articles in medical and lay journals. He is a highly respected consultant for the various medical institutions affiliated to Harvard Medical School in Boston and an honored speaker at a multitude of public forums. Thus, he joined the prestigious Harvard (the oldest and illustrious university of the United States) Medical School's faculty in 1969, where he remains today as a professor of psychiatry and faculty associate dean for Student Affairs. Dr. Poussaint is passionate about his work and is also currently director of the Media Center at the Judge Baker Children's Center in Boston.

He is known for his numerous contributions to Ebony magazine. He has been a frequent guest on the Oprah Winfrey Show. He was one of the brains and a major force behind the sitcom The Cosby Show

, one of the most-watched television programs in America. It was an extraordinary success which made history. This show helped propel NBC from third to first place in the primetime ratings. At one point was viewed by 38.3 million people, approximately one third of the American TV audience. This sitcom was the most-watched television program in America from its debut in 1984 until the end in 1992. Dr. Poussaint was a script and production consultant to NBC's

The Cosby Show

(from 1984 to 1992) and also to

The Cosby Show'

s spin-off

A Different World

(from 1986 to 1993).

With

it was the first time in television history that a sitcom had African-American parents with liberal professions.

changed the perception of the Black family worldwide. It was an educational situation comedy. For instance, Afrikaners began to view differently Black people and the sitcom was a hit in South Africa (it is important to note that at the time the masses of Black South Africans didn't have access to television sets). The Cosby's grandchildren (on ) were named Winnie and Nelson in honor of Winnie and Nelson Mandela. It was also the first time in television history in America to showcase a sitcom with young African-American adults attending college via

Dr. Poussaint's contribution to these shows definitely raised a new standard to the current (at the time) and the following American sitcoms in terms of social consciousness programming. The world knows Dr. Alvin Poussaint as a tireless crusader in the campaign to increase parental and public awareness regarding the harmful effects of violence and the increasing commercial exploitation of young children through television. Dr Poussaint continues to share his expertise with the media and works as an advocate of more responsible programming. He has appeared on numerous channels such as CNN. Dr. Poussaint is an expert on race relations in America, the dynamics of prejudice, and issues of diversity as our society becomes widely multicultural. He lectures on many college campuses and also serves as a consultant to government agencies and private corporations. He has done pioneering research on African American related to psychological and social issues.

Dr. Poussaint is one of the most important and respected physicians of diverse interests in the United States. He was classed among the top America's leading physicians in the July 2008 issue of Black Enterprise magazine. In spite of the diversity of his huge successes and accomplishments, Dr. Poussaint, a legendary psychiatrist distinguishes himself by his admirable simplicity and his generosity to share his knowledge. He embodies the great spirit of America. Through his books and his influence in the media, Dr. Poussaint gave us a legacy and we are looking forward to his next contributions. This article was published in English (in Canada) and French (in Europe and Africa).
